Meeting Agenda:

The NCR-134 Regional Research Committee sponsored its 19th annual conference on Applied Commodity Price Analysis, Forecasting, and Market Risk Management on April 22-23 in St. Louis, Missouri. Twenty-eight papers were presented and discussed. The conference meeting holds two concurrent sessions where similar methods, commodities, and/or issues are discussed. The papers were selected by the ten members of the NCR-134 Executive Committee from 48 two-page prospectuses submitted six months prior to the conference. The resulting collection of papers ranged over futures and options market analysis, market information, effects and management of market risk, price forecasting evaluations, and several other price analysis topics. The format of the meeting allows for extensive discussion of the paper, results, and implications.

Four of the 28 papers, or 14%, are collaborative works by researchers at different institutions. This regional project is the reason for these works. However, all of the research is discussed before participants from many institutions. All participants attend this meeting to hear about works from researchers at other institutions that are in the area of expertise addressed by the project.

An industry professional was invited to speak during the business lunch. The goal of the lunch speaking session is to discuss industry issues. Presenting during the lunch allows the discussion with the entire body of conference participants. Richard A. Brock of Brock Associates discussed “Perspectives from the Market Advisory Service Trade.” There has been research presented at the NCR-134 meetings that evaluate market advisory services. Most of this research is not flattering to advisory services. Mr. Brock was invited to respond because he had been speaking on this issue at industry meetings. The discussion was frank and useful. Interesting questions were revealed on both sides of the argument.

Following the research paper presentations program a short business meeting of the NCR-134 executive committee and other interested participants was held. NCR-134 Committee Coordinator, Stephen Koontz, indicated an attendance at this year’s conference of 41 participants. Special notice was made of the large number of graduate students and industry participants. Members were encouraged to recruit for the following year.

Koontz reported that the NCR-134 portion of the AgEcon Search web site located at the University of Minnesota would be the location of all presented papers for 2002. The NCR-134 web site managed by Joe Parcell, at University of Missouri would be the location of announcements and details of the committee operation. In addition, programs for upcoming meetings would also be placed on the web site as are links to the AgEcon Search web site. Joe Parcell will continue as the coordinator for the 2003 meeting.
Next year’s meeting was tentatively scheduled for April 21-22, 2003 in St. Louis, Missouri. Format would be similar to this year’s meeting with presented papers selected by a screening committee from a set of proposals due in October 2003. Stephen Koontz agreed to continue to serve as committee coordinator.

Meeting Adjourned: 4:30 p.m. April 22, 2003.

Respectfully submitted,

Stephen Koontz, Colorado State University, Coordinator, NCR-134 Committee
Michael Nolan, University of Missouri, Administrative Advisor
